BRIEF HISTORY

The World War II Army Post, Shenandoah Personnel Replacement Depot, commonly referred to as Camp Reynolds, was located in Front Royal, Shenandoah County, VA on approximately 1000 acres. It was established on September 1, 1942, after Shenandoah County had been donated to the War Relocation Authority by the County of Shenandoah. The original purpose of the camp was to house and train Japanese American soldiers who had been evacuated from the West Coast of the United States. The camp was named in honor of General George H. Reynolds, a prominent military leader of the American Civil War.

On June 24, 1942, the War Relocation Authority transferred the management of the camp to the War Relocation Authority. The camp was then known as the War Relocation Authority Camp Reynolds. The camp was used to house and train Japanese American soldiers who had been evacuated from the West Coast of the United States. The camp was named in honor of General George H. Reynolds, a prominent military leader of the American Civil War.
